The Two Redeemers of Prophecy: Biblical and Islamic End Times John Muir

There is a startling convergence between Biblical and Islamic prophecy that will shock the reader. Yet, the Christian church is mostly uninformed on Islamic prophecy and confused about Biblical prophecy. It is the author's hope that this book will cause the conservative church in America to re-examine what it believes about the return of Christ, our redemption, and what Christ meant when he said, "he who stands firm to the end will be saved" (Matthew 24:13). This ground breaking book examines the promises made to the saints of God and the nation of Israel in the Old Testament, then it looks at what Islam promises to the faithful of their religion. By looking at both of these perspectives the reader discovers there are two redeemers of prophecy; one who is Jewish and one who is Persian. The Bible predicts Jesus will return to earth, destroy the forces of evil at the battle of Armageddon, throw the Antichrist into the lake of fire, and reign on the throne of David forever. Islam predicts their redeemer will return to earth, kill the Jews and Christians, defeat the Jewish redeemer at the battle of Armageddon, throw him into the lake of fire, and rule the world from Jerusalem. Who is telling the truth? That is a matter of faith.
